Pioneer Square's parks are destinations that help define the neighborhood's character. Though they're filled with history, art, and charm, there is often a disconnect between the grandeur of the neighborhood's story and the look and feel of our parks. Our gateways suffer from the same disconnect, and do not reflect the value of Pioneer Square as one of the most historic, and culturally rich places in the Puget Sound region.

The Pioneer Square Parks and Gateways Project is an effort to build upon the current strengths of these public spaces by developing a common community vision for them and find resources to help them further develop into iconic destinations and dynamic, luring entrances to Seattle's first neighborhood.
